INTERNATIONAL STUDENT SATISFACTION WITH NEW ZEALAND

This factsheet outlines the key findings from the 2011/12 i-graduate surveys on the satisfaction reported by international students enrolled with New Zealand schools, universities, polytechnics, private training establishments and English language providers.

International enrolments

NB: Private training establishments include English language providers.

During 2013 there were 90,120 enrolments of international fee-paying students with New Zealand education providers.

(NB: This total excludes international students granted domestic fees status, such as PhD and exchange students).

The top five source countries of international fee-paying students were China (27.8%), India (13.1%), Japan (11.6%), South Korea (9.5%), and Saudi Arabia (3.7%).

Overall student satisfaction

The International Student Barometer surveys for 2011/12 found consistently high levels of satisfaction reported by international students, with their learning and living experiences in New Zealand.

Overall satisfaction levels ranged from 87% (university students living experience) to 92% (polytechnic students learning experience).

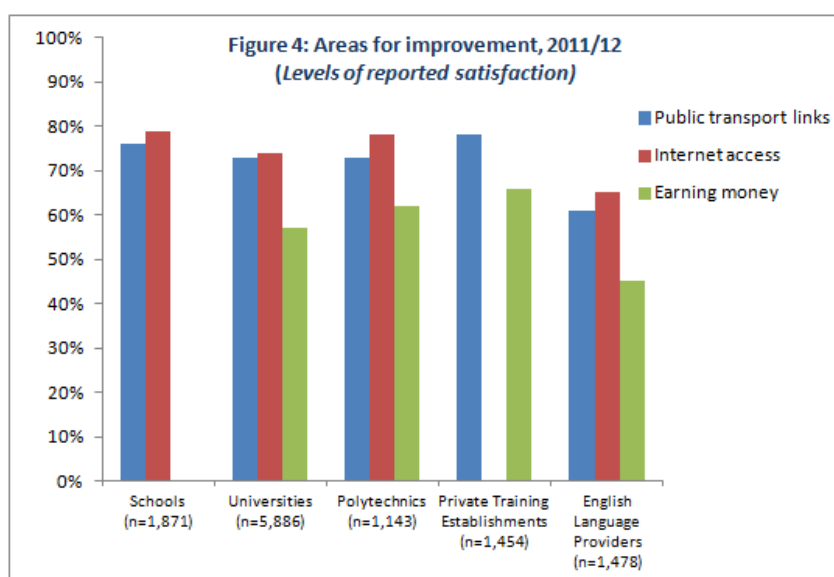

Comparing New Zealand with the Global International Student Barometer

International students enrolled in New Zealand often reported higher satisfaction than the benchmarks from the global International Student Barometer.

Notably, satisfaction levels were markedly higher for bank account, performance feedback, and employability. Similar results were reported by students enrolled with private providers.

International students noted lower levels of satisfaction with New Zealand's provision of public transport links, internet access, and opportunities to earn money.

Satisfaction levels for these aspects were generally lower than the global benchmarks from the International Student Barometer.

Satisfaction with living costs

The findings from the 2011/12 i-graduate surveys can be compared with similar findings from the studies carried out over 2007 and 2008. Notably, international students all reported lower levels of satisfaction with living costs in New Zealand, compared to the earlier study. This result is likely to reflect accommodation inflation in the major cities (particularly Auckland), coupled with the rising value of the New Zealand dollar.

International students' satisfaction with the cost of living in New Zealand	2011/12	2007/08
Universities	55%	58%
Polytechnics	66%	81%
Private Training Establishments	65%	-
English Language Providers	57%	-
